University Foundation Programmes at University of Nigeria

Your pathway to a UK education

The University of Nigeria offers a range of foundation programmes to help High School students progress directly onto degree programmes in the UK.

These courses are taught over one academic year, not only providing a qualification to gain entry into leading UK universities, but also developing the academic skills to ensure success in your chosen degree subject.

The University of Nigeria is one of the leading universities in Nigeria, with outstanding facilities and experienced and dedicated teachers. It appreciates that so many students wish to further their education in the UK to gain an internationally respected degree and has therefore teamed up with GEEC to teach courses in Business Management, Social Sciences and Engineering.

GEEC courses are recognised by highly ranked universities in the UK such as the University of East Anglia and the University of Essex, and we offer the guarantee that all students who pass the programme will gain offers of places at universities in Britain.

The courses combine specialised teaching with modules to develop your academic skills and prepare you for studies at degree level. You will study in small classes and benefit from one-to-one guidance in your choice of university and degree subject. You will also receive assistance in all aspects of the application process and applying for study visas.

The University of East Anglia, ranked 14 in the Times University rankings for 2015

"Our primary goal is to train the students in a manner that will equip them to gain admission in the United Kingdom. In so doing, we shall also impart in them the skills and aptitudes that will enable them analyze, appreciate, theorize and practicalize the fundamental dimensions of reality, in consonance with the precepts of our changing world."

Professor Benjamin C. Ozumba, Vice Chancellor, UNN.

"I am delighted to be working with one of the top universities in Nigeria. Over the years I have had the satisfaction of helping over a hundred Nigerian students to achieve their ambition of studying at leading universities in the UK, and am excited to have the opportunity of helping many others to realise their potential."

Michael Addison, Executive Director of GEEC.

Our Courses

Business Management

This course is for students who want to study business and finance related subjects at university. The depth modules are Business Studies, Accounting and Economics, and the programme has a practical focus applying information to the contemporary global workplace and helping students to develop skills vital for finding jobs in an increasingly competitive market.

Social Sciences

Students wishing to study Economics, Law, Politics or International Relations should choose this course. Teaching of the three depth modules encourages students to evaluate and analyze information, construct balanced arguments, and apply theories and concepts to current political, legal and economic issues.

Engineering

The course is appropriate for all branches of engineering including civil, mechanical, electrical, chemical, and petroleum. Teaching of the three depth modules – Physics, Mathematics, and Chemistry – encourages students to evaluate and apply information, and to develop the problem solving skills required at undergraduate level. In Physics and Chemistry, students also develop skills in planning, executing, and analysing practical investigations.
